Copyright and License

All JAHA articles are published under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution Non-Commercial License, and copyright is retained by the author(s). The Creative Commons Attribution Non-Commercial License permits use, distribution, and reproduction in any medium, provided the original work is properly cited and is not used for commercial purposes.

Authors grant the JAHA a license to publish the article and identify itself as the original publisher.

Authors also grant any third party the right to use the article freely as long as its integrity is maintained and its original authors, citation details, and publisher are identified, and it is not used for commercial purposes.

The JAHA* Open Access Agreement formalizes these and other terms and conditions of publishing research articles.

For instances where funder mandates require the use of a Creative Commons Attribution License license, accommodations can be granted as exceptions to the above requirement.

Copyright

The APS Journals are copyrighted for the protection of authors and the Society. The Mandatory Submission Form serves as the Society's official copyright transfer form.

Rights of Authors of APS Articles

- For educational purposes only:
 - Authors may republish parts of their final-published version articles (e.g., figures, tables), without charge and without requesting permission, provided that full acknowledgement of the source is given in the new work.
 - Authors may use their articles (in whole or in part) for presentations (e.g., at meetings and conferences). These presentations may be reproduced on any type of media in materials arising from the meeting or conference such as the proceedings of a meeting or conference. A copyright fee will apply if there is a charge to the user or if the materials arising are directly or indirectly commercially supported.
- Posting of the accepted or final version of articles or parts of articles is restricted and subject to the conditions below:
 - Theses and dissertations. APS permits whole published articles to be reproduced without charge in dissertations and posted to thesis repositories. Full citation is required.
 - Open courseware. Articles, or parts of articles, may be posted to a public access courseware website. Permission must be requested from the APS. A copyright fee will apply during the first 12 months of the article's publication by the APS. Full citation is required.
 - Websites. Authors may not post a PDF of the accepted or final version of their published article on any website including social and research networking platforms; instead, links may be posted to the article on the APS journal website (see exception to authors' own institution's repository, as note below).
 - Institutional repositories (non-theses). Authors may deposit their accepted, peer-reviewed manuscripts into an institutional repository providing:
- the APS retains copyright to the article¹

Journal of Lipid Research (JLR)

Copyright and License to Publish

For authors:

Effective with initial submissions from January 1, 2018, authors submitting new manuscripts to JLR must agree that, if their manuscript is accepted, they will grant ASBMB an exclusive, irrevocable License to Publish their work (this policy replaces JLR's former policy, for manuscripts initially submitted prior to January 1, 2018, in which authors were asked to transfer copyright to ASBMB). Effective with initial submissions from January 1, 2018, the copyright to the work remains with the authors as do many nonexclusive rights such as the right to post the author version of the accepted article on their personal web page, provided that a link to the journal is included. Please find more information about terms of our license and the specific rights retained by authors here.

Authors of accepted manuscripts may choose to publish their article under the non-exclusive CC-BY license by selecting the Author's Choice publishing option and paying the associated fee. Publishing under the CC-BY license automatically grants all commercial and noncommercial use of the work as long as appropriate credit is given to the original work. It also means that the final, edited PDF created by ASBMB will be immediately available on jlr.org and in PubMed Central (PMC) without the usual 12-month embargo period.

For noncommercial use:

Other parties are welcome to copy, distribute, transmit and adapt the work at no cost and without permission for noncommercial use as long as they attribute the work to the original source using the citation above.

Examples of noncommercial use include:

- Reproducing a figure for educational purposes, such as schoolwork or lecture presentations.
- Appending a reprinted article to a Ph.D. dissertation.

For commercial use:

Parties seeking to reuse JLR content for commercial purposes must obtain permission to do so. Navigate to the article of interest and click the "Request Permissions" button on the middle navigation bar (see diagram). It will walk you through the steps for obtaining permission for reuse.

Examples of commercial use by parties other than authors include:

- Reproducing a figure in a book published by a commercial publisher.
- Reproducing a figure in a journal article published by a commercial publisher.
