

Profile of the Directors on Physician Specialty Certification Boards

James Lifton

Certification of physicians who have completed a training program accredited by the Accreditation Council on Graduate Medical Education in the United States is administered by 24 specialty certification boards (SCB) that are members of the American Board of Medical Specialties (ABMS). These SCB are independent and have their own boards of directors which are profiled in this analysis. This paper updates the gender distribution of SCB directors, which has been studied previously, and also profiles public (i.e., non-physician¹) SCB directors.

Methods

The composition of specialty certification boards as of July 2021, and other information included in the analysis, was obtained from the SCB websites and verified via communication with SCB executives.² The gender of each director was determined from his or her picture, name, and/or pronoun used. Information about individual public members was obtained from SCB websites or other on-line sources. Public members were categorized based on their primary non-SCB activity as involved in health care advocacy and policy; a health system executive; having expertise in learning, training, and/or education; or financial executive in a non-health care setting.

Results

Directors on each specialty certification board are profiled in tabs a - x, including their name, gender, whether or not they are a public member, and SCB office if any.

Table 1 shows the total number of directors for each SCB, the distribution of directors by gender (number and percent) both in total and separately for physicians and public members, the number of public members if any, and the gender of the board chair.

Table 2 profiles SCB public members including the year in which each SCB became a member of ABMS and the year a public member first joined that SCB, along with the gender, primary non-SCB activity and educational credentials of each public member.

There are 381 directors on the 24 SCB, with board size ranging from 9 (American Board of Radiology) to 22 (American Board of Plastic Surgery). 238 (62%) of the directors are male and 143 (38%) are female. There are 21 public members and 19 of the 24 SCB have public members. 16 (76%) of the public directors are female and 5 (24%) are male. In 1979 the American Board of Pediatrics was the first SCB to add a public member. The next public members were not added until 2001 (by the American Board of Ophthalmology and American Board of Plastic Surgery). 9 SCB have added public members since 2015.

The primary non-SCB activities of public members include 10 in advocacy and policy, 7 health system executives, 3 involved in learning, training, and/or education, and 1 non-health care financial executives. 18 of 21 public members hold at least one advanced degree, including masters other than business (7), Master of Business Administration (5), Juris Doctor (3), and doctoral degree other than law (3).

End Notes

1. The American Board of Medical Genetics and Genomics certifies PhD geneticists and the American Board of Radiology certifies PhD medical physicists. These individuals are included when “physicians” are referenced in this paper.
2. From 2011 to 2020 I was an ABMS public member and became acquainted with all 24 SCB executives. I was able to reach out to them as colleagues and received responses to all of my queries.
